

David M. Clarke
Detective Superintendent
City of London Police

David was the deputy head of the City Police's Economic Crime Department and was a member of the original Fraud Review Team. He now leads the projects for the National Fraud Reporting Centre, Intelligence Bureau and Lead Force for Fraud, which have emanated from the Fraud Review. He started his policing career in 1980, serving with the RAF Provost. He joined the City Police in 1987. He was involved in policing operations following the terrorist attacks in the City in the early 1990s and 7/7 bombings in 2005. He has worked on the drugs and vice unit and in 2001 was seconded to the UN in Bosnia Herzegovina investigating human rights and corruption allegations. As a senior investigator, he has managed a variety of serious crime investigations.